

I have always preferred radio to television as a source of news and entertainment, due to the harmfully invasive nature of television. After I became an XM subscriber I found their news, traffic, and weather channels to be as satisfying as any available on television and far superior to local AM/FM radio stations. As a result I cancelled my cable service, replaced my radio, and became an XM-only household. The suggestion that I should now be required to own a television or AM/FM radio in order to receive local news, traffic, and weather information is troubling. I implore you to let XM Radio continue broadcasting as they are.

Thank you,

Jarrold W. Ramos